1. Answer in English the questions about the reading:

The life of Marco Fidel Suárez clearly shows that greatness is not claim of birth. It is acquired through life as the result of ambition and nobility.

His cradle in the humble hut of an unmarried washerwoman in Bello was no promise of his eventual rise to great destinies. The blunt refusal of the Church to allow him into priesthood on account of his humble origin, and the many enemies that he faced during his lifetime, were adversities that would have stunted a will of lesser force than his own. However, he perceived himself as a member of a community that needed his leadership and generosity, and he walked through his life with his head high.

We have many things to learn from this gentle character and of the way in which he rose in life. The full length of his literary work, “Los Sueños de Luciano Pulgar”, covers thirteen volumes with an incredible array of topics ranging from the political to the linguistic and philosophical. He is a philosophy of life in the service

- 1.1. Is the life of Marco Fidel great?
- 1.2. What was the main problem of his mother?
- 1.3. What kind of profession would he like?
- 1.4. Why did the church refuse him to be a priest?
