International Women's day (IWD) takes place every year on 8 March to celebrate the achievements of women all over the world. It started with a protest that took place in New York city in 1908 where women went out onto the streets to demand the right to vote, shorter working hours and better pay. Since then, it has taken many forms and today it's a global event that is supported by lots of charities, NGOs, governments and academic institutions.

In today's world it may appear that women have all the same opportunities as men. If you watch the news you will see women astronauts, women prime ministers and leader women in business. However, the statistics show that there's still a long way to go. A report made by the BBC showed that in the UK women occupied only 30,9 % of the most senior positions across a range of Jobs in areas like politics, business and policing. So, there is still a lot to do before we see an equal number of men and women in the top Jobs and receiving equal pay.

A lot of special events take place all over the UK to celebrate IWD. There are exhibitions, theatre shows, talks discussions, walking tours, and so much more. All the vents are designed to celebrate the role of women in society and to make us all think about the progress that has been made, and the changes that still need to take place to ensure a fair and equal world for all.
